# New Erasmus+ project:
 Young students as critical science detectives #

Coordinator: Absalon University College - DK
 The ultimate mission of the project is to create a model of YOUNG STUDENTS AS CRITICAL SCIENCE DETECTIVES that is attractive to schools and science teachers from across Europe and appears realistic to engage in.
 The model will be co-created by the young students themselves, as this is credo for all true educational innovation in the 21st century.
Curious? Just ask...

# New Erasmus+ project:
 Young students as political game changers #

Coordinator: Lithuanian College of Democracy - LT
 YOUNG STUDENTS AS POLITICS GAME CHANGERS will through innovative work methods address the urgent challenge of young students increasing disengagement in politics.
 The project asks: how can open schooling in secondary schools contribute to engaging young people in politics, democracy and European values? Curious? Just ask...

# New Erasmus+ project:
 Mission based learning #

Coordinator: University of Gloucestershire - UK
 Mission Based Learning builds on two decades of educational innovation experimentation but takes innovation much further. This project allows the young students to learn from real-life engagement, from taking change action and from accomplishing important missions or projects with relevance to the students as well as the community. Curious? Just ask...

# New Erasmus+ project:
 The school-business alliance #

Coordinator: Aston University - UK
 The mission of the School-Business Alliance project is to set up in practice and test permanent and dynamic chambers of commerce led entrepreneurial infrastructures for schools, and to produce useful guidance and demonstration cases to interested schools and chambers of commerce across Europe. Curious? Just ask...

# New Erasmus+ project:
 Family based open science schooling #

Coordinator: University of Eastern Finland - FI
 The project's most important mission is to develop practically useful guidance to secondary schools and science teachers on how to organize and facilitate family-based open science schooling with good quality, based on rich practical experimentation along the project and on co-creation with young students and their families.
Curious? Just ask...

# New Erasmus+ project:
 Young Europeans #

Coordinator: University of Gloucestershire - UK
 Countering increasing disinterest among the young generations in politics, democracy and European values through the creation of innovative ways of fostering early politics interest and engagement in school - based on an open schooling approach. Curious? Just ask...
